The Hershey Company Will Begin to Add "Contains" Statements to Labels as an Additional Allergen Callout

At The Hershey Company, we have robust allergen control practices in place across all of our operations. We have a wide variety of products with different allergen profiles; thus, we have plenty of experience effectively managing allergens. We know that what is acceptable for some individuals is not an option for others. This is why we focus on providing trusted options within our product portfolio for our food allergic consumers. In both products and labeling, we value feedback from our food allergic consumers.

To date, The Hershey Company has used the ingredient statement to declare allergens that are intentional ingredients in the product, but we have not used the voluntary "Contains" statement. We have heard from our consumers that they would appreciate "Contains" statements on our labels to make the allergen declarations more clear and quickly accessible. In response to these consumer requests, we are making this change to our packaging.

Over the next few weeks, new product packaging will begin to hit the shelves with the "Contains" statement prominently displayed in bold font below the ingredients statement. The first products where this change will occur are standard and king size Hershey's Milk Chocolate bars, Hershey's Special Dark bars, Hershey's Milk Chocolate with Almond bars, and Hershey's mr. Goodbar. All allergens will continue to be declared within the ingredient statement and will now also be repeated in the "Contains" statement.

While we have begun the rollout of these new labels, this transition will take some time to implement across the entire portfolio as we update and implement new packaging across a portfolio that includes dozens of brands and thousands of individual SKUs.

We want to remind consumers to please continue to read the entire ingredient statement. If you do not see a "Contains" statement on one of our packages, this does not automatically mean there are no allergens in the product. As a reminder, The Hershey Company labels for the FDA "Big 8" allergens as well as for sesame. We appreciate your continued trust in our products and are here if you have any questions.

I have a severe allergy, how do I know if I can consume your products?

Mondelez International is aware of the scriousness of allergens, and takes great care in making sure its products are safe, wholesome and properly labeled.

Our products are produced and labeled in compliance with the FDA labeling requirements. When labeling products, we consider - and label for - all possible sources of the 8 major allergens recognized by the FDA. Do you use dedicated lines to manufacture your products?

No we do not have dedicated lines for all our products.

We take special precautions to thoroughly clean and sanitize all our production lines between product changeovers on a line. We build these cleaning procedures into our safety systems to make sure there is no carryover from allergens; for example when switching from nut-containing products to ones without nuts.

If there is any risk of cross contamination we will label the allergen in the "manufactured on equipment that processes,"

These products are stored and handled appropriately and each warehouse has an allergen control program in place to protect against cross contamination of other finished goods and the manufacturing environment.

Cinnamon is an ingredient contained only in the Sugar "N Cinnamon product packaged exclusively at the Chalmette Refinery on a dedicated line."

Our products are properly labeled in accordance with the Food Allergen Labeling and Consumer Protection Act (FALCPA) of 2004 which requires labeling based upon US legislation if any of the 8 major food allergens are present. Our products also comply with European Regulation (EU Reg.) 1169/2011 and it is not necessary to label any of the 14 allergens referenced within this regulation.

A detailed Food Allergen Control procedure is maintained as part of the Corporation's Quality System documentation. This procedure addresses each of the areas that must be managed and controlled to realize effective allergen control.

(b) Nutrition Information

How does McCormick® label for the top allergens and sensitivities?

We are aware of allergies and sensitivities and will always declare the following ingredients on our label in the ingredient statement - they will never be hidden under the notations of "spices" or "natural flavors":

• Wheat • Milk & Milk Products • Peanuts • Tree Nuts • Egg • Soy • Shellfish • Sesame (for US products made beginning January 2023) • Fish • Yellow Dye #5 (Tartrazine) • Monosodium Glutamate or MSG • Sulfites over 10 ppm • Gluten containing grains - including barley, rye, oats, spelt, triticale, and kamut

If no ingredient statement appears on the product label, then the products is as it appears in the product name (e.g. black pepper). This labeling policy is compliant with US or Canadian food labeling laws, as appropriate. If any product has a Gluten Free claim, the product and the manufacturing line has been validated Gluten Free. Our facilities have allergen, sanitation, and hygiene programs in place. Our employees follow good manufacturing practices and are trained in the importance of correct labeling and the necessity of performing thorough equipment clean-up and change over procedures to minimize cross-contact of ingredients. We encourage you to read the ingredients statement on your package at the time of purchase to ensure accurate, up to date information.
